THE GREAT SIRE LINES

INTRODUCTION

These tables include nearly all the sires at present at the Stud in England, France, and the Australian Colonies, and are compiled, not to indicate the successful sire lines, but to demonstrate how and why certain lines necessarily fail.

There are a large number of sires in other countries whose names do not appear in the tables, but as all the lines in tail male are recorded, it will be found that any male descendant of the English thoroughbred can be easily traced.

The Student of breeding will, I hope, appreciate the tables in their present form. Their aim is to make clear to him my reasons for believing that the fundamental cause of the failure of any sire line, however promising at the outset, is universally attributable to a particular form of inbreeding. There is no instance of the male line surviving where its founder and his dam's sire descend within three generations from the same horse. The male line also fails when there are continuous repetitions in its female alliances of stallions belonging to its own line as instanced in those of Catton and Emilius, which practically disappeared as male lines in their second generation of descendants. In both these lines the dam of the sire, grand sire, and great grand sire on the male side were near descendants of Tartar and Herod. It cannot be gainsaid that many closely inbred horses have proved champions on the Turf and as a consequence have had the best of opportunities at the Stud, but they have all failed to maintain their male line. The list of turf successes and stud failures is very large, but while inbreeding (my reference is to inbreeding in direct male descent) has, in my opinion, been the primary cause of failure, there are very few horses or mares who have undergone a severe turf career, and who have subsequently reproduced their individual excellence in future generations. I may here instance the brothers Stockwell and Rataplan. The former's turf career was one of the easiest, as he started in only fourteen races. Rataplan started over 70 times, carried big weights, and contested some very severe races. Stockwell was the sire of sires of the century, and survives in many lines of descent; Rataplan got a few useful horses but his male line appears to exist only through the one thread of his very inbred grandson Wisdom.

It must not be accepted that I consider racing as injurious to the procreative powers of a horse, on the contrary training and racing in reason must assist nature; but when a horse is worked hard early in his two years old career and is sound enough to continue until he is five or six under strenuous conditions, the failure of his male line is usually very rapid.

Over racing with mares is more fatal, and it will be found that a large percentage of successful turf performers have proved barren at the Stud, and very few have ever produced foals to be compared with themselves.

For perpetuating the male line a sire seldom is successful before he is six years old or after he is eighteen. There are only three important exceptions to the latter that I can trace; they are Birdcatcher and his famous grandson Stockwell, (the former having sired Oxford when he was 23 and the latter Doncaster when he was 20 years old), and Voltaire, who begat Voltigeur when he was 20. There have been many horses such as Emilius, Edmund, Pantaloon, Gladiator, Windhound, etc., whose sires were either in or over their twentieth year, but their successes at the Stud have inclined more to the female than to the male.

There however appears to be no limit of age for the production of a mare's best offspring. Queen Mary 1843 by Gladiator was just three years younger than her dam when born, she was covered when three years old, and until her death in 1872 she produced a succession of great horses and mares. Another case is that of Flora McIvor (Australia), whose best descendants at the Stud, Io and Waimea were foaled when she was 27 and 29 or 26 and 28, there being some doubt whether she was born in 1828 or 1829.

An illustration of my theory is found by contrasting the cases of Galopin and Petrarch, whose pedigrees in the male line I append.

Galopin { Vedette by Voltigeur by Voltaire dam by { Flying Dutchman dam by Voltaire

Petrarch { Lord Clifden by Newminster by Touchstone dam by Orlando by Touchstone.

The difference is that Galopin's inbreeding to Voltaire came up through his dam's line, while Petrarch's dam was in direct male descent from Touchstone, his own paternal ancestor. Both were great horses on the Turf, and both had great opportunities at the Stud; there is, however, no comparison between them as to the establishment of a lasting male line.

On the other hand mares inbred in male descent are not similarly affected, some of the greatest sires being from inbred mares; Pot 8 o's grand dam was by a son out of a daughter of Crab. Birdcatcher's dam Guiccioli, and Orlando's dam Vulture were inbred in both male and female descent to Herod. Stockwell's grand dam Marpessa and West Australian's dam Mowerina were similarly inbred to Eclipse. Isonomy's dam Isola Bella was inbred to Sir Hercules. Vampire, the dam of Flying Fox, was inbred to Vedette. Melbourne's dam was inbred to Eclipse. Miss Letty, the dam of Weatherbit, was closely inbred to Orville. Sweetmeat's dam was by a son out of a daughter of Blacklock. Toxophilite's dam, Legerdemain, was inbred to Sir Peter Teazle. Sir Hercules's dam, Peri, was inbred to Eclipse. These are only a few examples of inbreeding the female to her sire's line which assuredly contrast with the failures of corresponding inbreeding in the direct male line.

On the question of incestuous breeding there is no instance I know of where the male line has survived, but there are cases where a female so bred has been prolific from the earliest period and is flourishing in her progeny at the present time. The Bruce Lowe and Hermann Goos family No. 6 had its origin in the mating of Spanker with his own dam, and it is a singular coincidence that the three great sire lines that are left us, viz., Eclipse, Herod, and Matchem, owe their existence in some measure to this Spanker mare as follows:—

Eclipse ... Marske
- Squirt — Childers (Bartlet's) — Darley Arabian / Betty Leedes
  - Old Careless — Spanker — Darcy's Yellow Turk / Old Morocco Mare
  - Cream Cheeks (Sister to Charming Jenny) — Leedes Arabian / dam by Spanker / Old Morocco Mare (Spanker's dam)
- dam by Hutton's Blacklegs
  - dam by Bay Bolton
    - dam by Fox Cub — ——
      - Clumsey
      - Charming Jenny (Sister to Cream Cheeks) — Leedes Arabian / dam by Spanker / Old Morocco Mare (Spanker's dam)

Herod
- Tartar — Partner / Meliora — Fox — —
  - Clumsey
  - Bay Peg — Leedes Arabian
  - Young Bald Peg — Leedes Arabian / Old Morocco Mare (Spanker's Dam)
- Cypron — Blaze — —
  - Childers (Flying) — —
    - Darley Arabian
    - Betty Leedes
      - Old Careless
      - Cream Cheeks — Leedes Arabian / dam by Spanker / Old Morocco Mare (Spanker's dam)

Matchem ... Cade
- Godolphin Arabian
- Roxana — Bald Galloway / dam by
  - Akaster Turk
  - Cream Cheeks
    - Leedes Arabian
    - dam by Spanker / Old Morocco Mare (Spanker's dam)

In the case of Herod, the incestuous breeding appears twice, the Spanker mare coming through his dam and Leedes Arabian mating with his daughter coming through his sire Tartar, and if it is accepted that incestuous breeding materially affects the male line, it would be a reasonable answer that both the Herod and Matchem lines are more successful in their females, because the male progenitors were nearer to the incestuous breeding than Eclipse. Another proof of the failure of the male line through near incestuous breeding was that of Crab, who is often quoted as being responsible for many great horses through his female descendants. Crab's turf career was very short; he was born in 1722, his only performances, according to my records, being in 1728, winning a match for 500gs., four miles, and in 1729 he won His Majesty's Plate at Newmarket, two four mile heats, but he broke down in his next race. Crab's pedigree is similar in the female line to that of Tartar, the sire of Herod, and is as follows:—

Crab
- Alcock's Arabian
- Sister to Soreheels
  - Basto (half-brother to Fox) — ——
    - Byerley Turk
    - Bay Peg
      - Leedes Arabian
      - Y. Bald Peg by Leedes Arabian

It will be noted that neither of these sons of an incestuously bred mare, viz., Basto or Fox, ever sired a son that appears in pedigrees, excepting through the female line, and although Crab had several good sons, the male line practically died in the first generation. I will here tabulate all the important male descendants of the line:—

Crab 1722 B.T. Basto
- 33 Sloe 1740 D.A. Flying Childers
- 21 Rib 1736 Woodcock
- 1 Spectator 1749 B.T. Partner
  - 13 Mark Anthony 1767 G.B. Blank
    - 10 Aimwell 1782 B.T. Herod
- 6 Allworthy 1744 D.A. Flying Childers
- 7 Black and All Black or Othello 1743 Brother to
- 7 Oroonoko 1745 Brother to
- 7 Bustard 1741 Y. True Blue
  - ? Gamahoe 17- G.B. Regulus
- 4 Shepherd's Crab 1747 B.T. Partner
- 6 Brilliant 1750 Godolphin Arabian
- 33 Locust 1744 Fox

Crab's dam produced five sons by Flying Childers, but only two of them, Second and Snip, appear in pedigrees. The latter's influence on the thoroughbred is equal, if not superior, to that of his half brother through his grand daughters Angelica, Curiosity, and Snapdragon, all by Snap, but the male line disappeared with equal rapidity.

The failure to perpetuate the male line by the immediate female descendants of Basto is in marked contrast to their success in continuing the female line. The existence of the No. 9 family, of which there are five branches, is entirely due to two daughters of Basto; the foundation mares being (1) the dam of Crab and Snip, from whom descend Cyllene, Son o' Mine, and Winkfield's Pride; (2) Snip's daughter Bay Snip, the ancestress of Dick Andrews, Warlock, The Wizard, and Wavelet's Pride; (3) Crab's daughter Mab, the ancestress of Bendigo and Kilwarlin; (4) another daughter of Crab out of a Bay Bolton mare, the ancestress of Muley Moloch, St. Giles and Bloomsbury, and (5) a daughter of Sweepstakes (whose dam was by Basto) the ancestress of Mercury, Daniel O'Rourke, etc.

Another instance of inbreeding comes in with Swordsman, by Weasel, whose sister was one of the two foundation mares of the No. 20 family.

The inbreeding of Weasel to Crab is accentuated in the dam of Swordsman.

This family has produced some very good performers on the Turf but the male line is weak. Still another instance of inbred females surviving is that of Old Ebony, the foundation mare of the No. 5 family, who was by Basto. Her grand daughter, Hag, was by Basto's grandson, Crab, and this branch of the family is still in evidence. It has never been strong in males, but it includes Doncaster, who has no near inbreeding either on the male or female side, a remark that also applies to his famous son Bend Or.

The pedigree of Alice Hawthorn by Muley Moloch is worth inserting on account of four generations of her ancestors, both male and female, being descended from Eclipse.

A case of inbreeding in the female line of more recent years is that of Mandragora and her sisters Mineral and Minaret, who were by Birdcatcher's grandson Rataplan from a Birdcatcher mare. These mares have been most prolific in producing successful descendants on the Turf but the male line is weak, the only sires of prominence being Kisber, his half brother Wenlock, and Mandrake.

While there are many descendants of the Herod line in America and on the Continent, it is for the present remarkable for the small number representing it in England and the Australasian Colonies. The line has never been celebrated for great sires, but its value in the female line cannot be overstated, and perhaps breeders in England will some day recognise their loss when recollecting what immense influence such mares as Expectation by Herod, Prunella and Evelina by Highflyer, Maria by Telemachus, Rosamond by Buzzard, Guiccioli by Bob Booty, Pocahontas by Glencoe, Queen Mary by Gladiator, Ennui by Bay Middleton, and Agnes by Clarion, to mention only a few, had on the breeding of the thoroughbred.

The Godolphin Arabian line has been on the verge of extinction as a male line more than once, but although small in numbers its influence in the female line has been of very great importance. Whether it will be resuscitated into the prominence it deserves is doubtful, as it really only survives through the strangely bred Barcaldine. There are chances that Arbitrator may help to keep it alive in England, and faint hopes of the American branch through Australian, and the French descendants of Ruy Blas, but the male descendants of these offshoots are so few that its continued existence seems problematical. The dam of the greatest of all sires, Eclipse, was a descendant of this Arabian, as was the dam of Whalebone, while Faith by Pacolet, Camilla by Trentham, and Beeswing by Dr. Syntax, have left their hall mark on many lines, to say nothing of the Melbourne mares of later years once so eagerly, and so rightly sought after.

Returning to the Darley Arabian, in addition to the extinction of the Orville-Emilius and Golumpus-Catton lines, those of Whisker and Tramp are perilously near the same fate. In the case of Whisker age was beginning to tell upon his sire Waxy, and this probably accounts for so few male descendants, but I suggest that the line's continuance was mainly insured by the successes of Stockwell and Rataplan, whose dam Pocahontas was also the dam of King Tom. That King Tom had great opportunities at the Stud is self evident, but, as an authority on breeding says, he was essentially a "filly getter." This is not to be wondered at, when his breeding is closely studied, because it is much on the same lines as that of Crab, through his sire, Harkaway, whose maternal sire Nabocklish, was by Rugantino out of Butterfly by Master Bagot (by Bagot) out of a daughter of Bagot.* In addition to the incestuous

*Nabocklish's pedigree is wrongly given in several works. In the General Stud Book, Vol. III., third edition, Butterfly is returned as being by Bagot out of Mother Brown by Trunnion, but this is corrected in Vol. IV., fourth edition, as above, the unnamed daughter of Bagot being out of Mother Brown.

breeding of Nabocklish's dam, King Tom 's sire, Harkaway, was over saturated to the extent of twelve-sixteenths of Byerley Turk blood as follows:—

		dam by	Teddy the Grinder	Asparagus	E.

				dam by Florizel	B.T.

The only other branch of Whisker to survive for any length of time was the one in Australia through The Colonel, Cap-a-pie, Sir Hercules, and Yattendon, but this line is practically extinct.

The Tramp line has disappeared so far as English breeders are concerned. He was inbred to Eclipse, being by a grandson out of a great grand daughter. His line has survived inbreeding longer than any other, what is left of it coming through Rosicrucian, whose male line right back to Tramp is in direct female descent from Eclipse, Weatherbit being very closely inbred to Orville.

With inbreeding so rampant at the present day it may be asked what is the remedy? It is only necessary to go a little into past history to find that outbreeding will resuscitate a failing line, and this is apparent in two of the three surviving Eclipse lines, namely Blacklock and Sir Hercules. Blacklock was a g.g. grandson of Eclipse in both male and female descent, and the line as a male line is only surviving through Voltaire, Voltigeur, and Vedette to Galopin and Speculum. Of the remainder of Blacklock's sons they are more in evidence as sires of females, his two best next to Voltaire being Velocipede and Brutandorf, but both these horses accentuated the inbreeding to Eclipse and have died out. Sir Hercules was as inbred to Eclipse as Blacklock, and like the latter, only survives through one line, viz., Birdcatcher, whose dam and grand dam were both inbred to Herod; both Birdcatcher's successful sons Oxford and The Baron were inbred again to Eclipse through the weakening lines of Orville and Whisker, only to return again to the Herod line with Stockwell and Rataplan. Touchstone, the greatest racehorse and most prolific individual of the three surviving Eclipse lines, was certainly inbred to Eclipse, but much farther back in the sixth and seventh generation respectively, and although the line is not quite as successful as the other two there are so many good descendants that it is quite likely to reassert itself.

Horse breeding is of course a lottery in which Nature takes a prominent hand, and is a little different from breeding animals for domestic purposes. Inbreeding in cattle and sheep is successfully carried out all over the world for the production of meat, milk, and wool, etc., but the animal lives a life of ease and luxury; on the other hand, with the horse the requirements are strength, speed, nerve, and stamina, with the power to reproduce them.

It is a curious paradox that there are few cases of successful close inbreeding recorded in the female line, while from the earliest history of the Turf breeders have had no hesitation in inbreeding to the male line. One instance of the former comes home to us in later years with Barcaldine, who is out of a grand daughter of his sire's dam. It cannot but be admitted that Barcaldine was a great racehorse and a successful sire. His temper, which he seemed to transmit to his immediate descendants, was, I think, attributable to his breeding; whether his line will continue as a male line can only be decided by time.

While not accepting the late Bruce Lowe's theory, I fully recognise that, coupled with the Hermann Goos tables, its value for reference can hardly be over-estimated.

Neither these tables nor those mentioned above will point out a royal road to success in horsebreeding, but such compilations must prove an incentive to further study, and serve as guide posts to warn Breeders against those roads which are foredoomed to failure.
